COVENTRY, R.I. -- A dog killed a days-old baby girl in Coventry, R.I.

Police told two television stations that the little girl was mauled Wednesday morning by a Siberian Husky.

One station reported that the family tried to drive the baby girl to the hospital, but stopped at the fire station in West Warwick, R.I., where firefighters tried to help save the girl.

The dog is in the custody of local animal control officers.

Coventry police Lt. Ronald DaSilva said the death is being investigated and police are trying to be sensitive to a grieving family.
