

3 yearold bit, forced to 120 stitches.

A dog of this type (imagine pic of the Dobe) hurt the 3 yearold seriously.

The large male Doberman bit the 3 yearold in the head without warning. The boy had to be sedated while his wounds were being stitched up with the 120 stitches necessary.

The boy and his family live in a town in the middle of Sweden and the family raises Dobermanns.

"My dogs are very stabile mentally" Says the mother.

She is afraid that this will damage her reputation as a breeder and wishes to remain anonyms.

The male had just recently arrived to their farm from a breeder in Russia. All the papers were in order, but the purchase of the dog has not been completed when the attack took place.

"He laid by the coffeetable, I sat in the sofacorner and my babyboy was playing on the floor 2 metres away" says the mother.

All of a sudden the dog attacked.

"Totally without provokation. I managed to finally pry the boy off him when he lunged after him again"

"Seemed stabile"

The police seized the 5 yearold male dog and took the decision that he was to be sent back to its owner in Russia.

"It seemed stabile, calm and open. Everyone that met the dog shared this opinion. I ask myself all the time why this happened. If it had been my dog it would have been put to sleep.

Now there is a chance that he might get sold again"

She is incredibly grateful that the boy survived.

"Now he is just fine again. And not afraid of our other dogs at all.
