Boy mauled to death in dog attack

Canadian Press

Friday, July 28, 2006

POWerview, Manitoba -- A two-year-old boy was mauled to death by at least two dogs on a Manitoba reserve.

RCMP say the attack happened on the Hollow Water First Nation, about 190 kilometres northeast of Winnipeg.

Conrad Bushie found the mangled, bloody body of his nephew, Derian Bushie, near a large boulder at the edge of a lake.

A babysitter alerted the uncle that the tot was missing, and several locals searched the area.

His parents were out shopping for groceries at the time Derian was killed.

Bushie found the boy's lifeless body on a neighbour's nearby property.

He scooped up the tiny boy and carried him away from several chained and loose dogs, some of which still had red blood stains on their fur.

Inspector John Ferguson says two husky-cross dogs will be put down.

One dog was tied up at the time of the attack, while the other was loose.
