London police need help finding owners of two dogs that attacked passersby in separate incidents yesterday. At 3 a.m. a man was scratched by a small black dog as he walked across a bridge on Windermere Road across from Western Research Park.

The dog's owner was white, slim and about five-foot-10. The man faces rabies shots unless the dog can be found and its vaccination confirmed.

Also yesterday, a woman walking her dog on Adelaide Street near Osgoode Drive was bitten by one of two border collies. The dogs' owner was a six-foot white male, slim with brown hair and in his late 20s. The owner would not say if the dogs were licensed or vaccinated.

Anyone with information should phone police at 661-5670.
