Woman Loses Chunk of Arm in Dog Attack

Williston, Vermont - August 13, 2007

Williston Police don't plan on filing charges in connection with a vicious dog attack.

It happened over the weekend on Porterwood Drive. Police say a man and a woman, who knew the chow tried to feed it treats. That's when the dog reportedly attacked, biting off a large chunk of the woman's arm and biting the male. The dog's owner intervened, and was also bitten.

All three were hospitalized

The animal was quarantined.

The dog was current on its rabies shot, but was not licensed with the town.
