Some Blackfoot residents want a German Shepherd put down after it attacked them Wednesday night.

A few people thought the dog was a stray and took it in from the cold, but they soon regretted that decision.

"We had to call the cops because it was attacking everybody."

Carla Adermann and Nicole Walters felt sorry for a German Shepherd they found wandering by their apartment on Ruby Street, and took it for a car ride to Shelley.

"We took the dog in and we fed him, we got him warmed up," said Walters. "At first, the dog wasn't really mean, he was really nice, licking everybody, licking my three-year-old son."

When they got back to their apartment, they didn't let it back inside. But they say it charged in when a friend came to open the door, and became so menacing it trapped them inside.

"I was over at my other friend's house, and they called me and said the dog won't let him leave, so I came back over and I pushed it, and it bit me on the arm," said Adermann.

The dog also charged toward Adermann's two month old son, and bit a man hard enough to draw blood.

"It's gone after children and adults, it should be put down, in my opinion. He's bit once, he's gonna bite again," said Walters.

Police arrived and were able to capture the dog with some help.

"It wouldn't even let them out their cars," said Adermann.

Now it's in the animal shelter, and its fate is unclear.

"If the owner releases the dog, we will euthanized. The court can order the dog euthanized pending more charges," said Blackfoot Police Captain Kurt Asmus.

Police told us the dog had just been released from the shelter the day before, following a separate attack.

The owner was charged for having a vicious dog and now more charges are pending.

We were not able to reach her.
