

PITTSBURGH TRIBUNE-REVIEW

Dog shot, killed after Homewood attack: police

By The Tribune-Review

Monday, December 24, 2007

Someone shot and killed a dog Sunday evening after it attacked a person near North Homewood Avenue and Idlewild Street, police said.

Police said a person, who was not identified, was bitten several times by a dog. A witness to the attack shot the dog and left the scene, police said.

The bite victim was taken to a hospital for treatment. No information on that person's condition was available, but police said the wounds were not life-threatening.

Images and text copyright © 2007 by The Tribune-Review Publishing Co.
Reproduction or reuse prohibited without written consent from PghTrib.com