UPDATED: 10:51 am EDT May 26, 2007

An 11-year-old boy was recovering in a Pittsburgh hospital on Friday night after police said a neighbor's dog mauled him.

Police said the boy was playing in his neighbor's yard on Welday Avenue in Steubenville just before 8 p.m. Friday, when the neighbor's dog attacked him.

Steubenville police said the German shepherd\Labrador mix tore into the boy's leg, and took off a part of the boy's calf and bit his arm.

Emergency crews rushed the boy to Trinity Medical Center, where another ambulance then transported him to Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Police told NEWS9 the boy's injuries were serious.
