Chicago boy released from hospital after dog attack

Friday, August 01, 2008 | 4:38 PM

An 11-year-old Chicago boy is released from the hospital after he was attacked by a pit bull.

The incident occurred Thursday as Alex Garza played near the car dealership where his mother works.

She says the dog was not provoked. Garza was treated at Comer Children's Hospital.

The dog was taken to animal control. Officials there believe the dog may be a stray.
