BEWARE OF THAT DOG BITE!

Janice Stoneley, 51, told her husband, Edward, that she cut herself on a knife while washing up when she had really been bitten by her Springer spaniel while trying to take a ball out of the dog's mouth. Stoneley was afraid her husband would make her get rid of the dog. Four days after the dog bite, Stoneley collapsed and died from multiple organ failure and severe septicaemia. David Horsley, the Manchester Deputy Coroner, said that the infection arose from a wound that most probably was caused by the bite. Mr. Stoneley has since had the dog rehoused. Another factor in Stoneley's death could have been that she cleaned out the fishpond after receiving the bite.
