COLERAIN TOWNSHIP, Ohio -- A dog attacked a pregnant caseworker Monday morning as she conducted an in-home visit for Hamilton County Job and Family Services.

Maya Hamber, 28, was hospitalized for minor injuries, according to agency officials, after the dog bit her several times around 9:30 a.m. on parts of her lower body.

The dog was inside a home in the 2400 block of Washington Avenue in Colerain Township, where foster children had been placed with an unidentified family.

Hamber, who is four months pregnant, was attacked inside the home, so police said the homeowner would likely not be charged.

Both Hamber and her unborn child were expected to be fine, according to agency officials.
