CORNELIUS, Ore. -- A Cornelius man was recovering Thursday from injuries suffered in an attack by two dogs.

The man told police two blue heeler mixes attacked him in a Cornelius neighborhood just after 10 a.m.

When police arrived, they found the two dogs running in the area. Witnesses said the dogs were being aggressive and barking at police. Officers, fearing for their safety, fired shots at the dogs, authorities said.

One of the dogs was hit, but ran away. Animal control officers captured the second dog.

The owner of the dogs said they were always well-behaved in the past.

"I've had them since they were puppies," said the owner, who did not want to be identified. "It's a shame, you know."

Animal control officers said the owner agreed to euthanize the captured dog.

Police said the victim in the dog attack is recovering from several bites.
