A four year old Airdrie boy is still recovering from a dog bite that happened nearly a month ago.

The boy's injuries were so bad he's had to have several surgeries.

Keegan McCann was bitten by a dog on June 28th.

It was a bad bite, made a lot worse by the fact that Keegan has a condition called Neutropenia. It's a blood disorder which makes Keegan more susceptible to bacterial infections.

Despite the fact he received immediate medical attention, it's been a long and painful recovery.

Keegan was bitten while he was with his sister and uncle in the green space behind their home.

The dog owner the dog was friendly. Keegan's mother says they have been told by Airdrie Bylaw Services that the dog has since been put down.

It could take several years before Keegan's arm has fully healed.

Friends are holding a fundraiser this weekend to help Keegan's family with medical expenses such as prescription drugs and the cost of an ambulance.
