A dog bite on the south-west side of town has prompted a crackdown from animal care services.

Although the woman wasn't hurt badly, ACS officers say there's a bigger problem with roaming dogs in the neighborhoods around Sun Valley.

An out-of-town visitor was bitten in the calf, prompting a visit to the doctor. And the dog's owner received citations that could reach $1,000.00 in fines.

The dog, a mixed-shepherd breed, was confiscated. Animal care officers will monitor the dog for ten days, part of a mandatory rabies quarantine.
