Bulldog girl five - Animal attacks child for little reason. The five-year-old girl suffered severe injuries to the face after she was attacked by a bulldog in Northamptonshire. The American bulldog was grabbed by the girl's stepfather in an effort to release her.

"Police contained the dog at the scene and it will be humanely destroyed later," a spokesman for the Northamptonshire Police department said in a statement. "Their injuries are not thought to be life-threatening at this time." However, she has several facial injuries from the bulldog.

The dog is a family pet, and when the stepfather saw what was happening, he tried to force the animal away from his stepdaughter. Eventually, the bulldog released her but he received injuries to the arm in the process. The child and the man were taken to hospital by ambulance following the attack on Sunday.

The attack comes after 18-month-old Zumer Ahmed was mauled to death in Crawley, West Sussex, last month by a family pet also believed to be an American bulldog. The breed is not banned under the Dangerous Dogs Act, police have said. The girl, whose real name is Tanisha Hall, was described by neighbours as a playful child.
