Pit bull the only suspect in house fire

November 21, 2005

JAMESTOWN, N.D. -- Advertisement
A pit bull left home alone jumped on top of a stove and started a fire that caused about $2,000 in damage, officials said.

"It's kind of a freak accident," said Fire Department Capt. Jim Reuther.

The dog named Satchel climbed on the stove and stepped on a push-button control, which turned on a burner, said the dog's owner, Josh Larson. The burner ignited something plastic on the stove top.

"I just can't believe it," Larson said. "It's just unreal."

Firefighters extinguished the blaze. No other residents of the apartment building were affected.

Larson, who was at work at the time, said his main concern was Satchel.

The dog ran off but was found a few blocks away about five hours later, shaking with fear.
