Nevada Humane Society Rescue dog rescues six abandoned kittens left in a box hidden in some bushes.

Angel, a pit bull-boxer mix, was rescued by the humane society recently after her previous owners were forced to leave her behind when they moved.

On one particular day while taking an afternoon walk with two volunteers from the shelter, Angel picked up a scent from some bushes. She dragged her walkers to the area of the scent where it was soon discovered six 3-week-old kittens, bright as a bunch of oranges, huddled together in a box.

When human society staff were called to the scene, one kitten escaped but that did not stop Angel making one more rescue. She led one of the volunteers to the wayward kitten where it was safely reunited with its brothers and sisters.

Angel is a sweet, playful dog who can now add hero to her repertoire.

If you would like to adopt Angel, foster the six rescued kittens, or donate so other dogs and cats can be rescued, please call 775-856-2000 or email info@nevadahumanesociety.org.
